ABSTRACT

The goal of this study is to present the relation between elements in a story. It is also presented the possible sequence that would happen if there is one or more sequences that changing. The research methodology was done by library research. The analysis process uses the literary theory. The theory that used in this research is structuralism approach. The approach is used in favor to look at the structure built the story. It can be concluded that all subject in human's life built up from the elements relates to each other. If one element changes, it will affect the other elements. Moreover, it could change the system. If there is a trouble in one system, it would be easier to solve by looking which element creates the problem, and then fix it.
