ABSTRACT

People often relate the word success with concrete things such as achievement, authority, money, position, power, and wealth. This thesis tells the readers about some other things that also determine someone to be really successful in his or her life. They are his or her track of records in gaining success and his or her domestic life. However, those two things are often ignored. Therefore, this thesis discusses the words and figurative sentences that indicate the author’s mocking voice towards the main character and her family’s track of records in gaining their success and domestic life by using lexical analysis which is included in Stylistics criticism in the Master of the Game novel composed by Sidney Sheldon. The writer’s goal and function in writing his thesis is by showing the author’s mocking voice towards the main character’s successful life to the readers, the readers can learn that it is important for everyone to keep all things in balance. The method that the writer uses in writing his thesis is qualitative research which is a method of research that deals with words and sentences. The writer collects all words and figurative sentences that indicate the author’s mocking voice towards the main character and her family’s career and domestic life.
