ABSTRACT

The Best Little Girl In The World is a novel by Steven Levenkron that becomes one of the best selling novels. This novel tells about a girl who is searching image then turns become an anorexic. In this paper, the problem which is going to be analyzed is the cause-and-effect relationship in search of image by Francesca, the major character. For this purpose structuralism theory is more focuses in used as the approach to make the analysis more directed to cause-and-effect. As the result, it is concluded that the search of image of the major character is caused by the feeling of dissatisfaction with her image and disappointment with her family that trigger the anorexic which is as the effect. This structure of events is cause-and-effect analysis. The research methodology that is used in writing this paper is qualitative method.
